COUNCIL WOULD STOP COASTING ON STREETS

Ordinance to that Effect Passed on Tuesday Evening but Burgess Holtzworth will not Sign it. Curb Market Receives Attention and Much Other Business is Transacted.

The Gettysburg Town Council had a busy session on Tuesday evening and transacted a great amount of important business among which was the passing of an ordinance prohibiting coasting on the streets of town. Burgess Holtzworth has stated to a representative of The Times that he will not sign the ordinance so that, even if the Council should pass it over his veto, it will be some time before the young people of town, and the older ones too, will be compelled to desist from this winter pleasure.

The matter of the curb market was brought up by Councilman Armor and the sentiment of the Council favored the proposition. A committee was appointed to report at the next meeting.

ANTI-COASTING ORDINANCE

Mr. Kitzmiller, chairman of the ordinance committee stated that there had been considerable complaint regarding the amount of coasting on Baltimore Hill and said that, after speaking to various members of the Council he decided to present the ordinance which declares "that it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to use any sled or other similar vehicle for coasting upon any of the pavements, public streets, lanes or alleys, and every person offending against the provisions of this ordinance, and being duly convicted thereof, shall forfeit and pay a fine of $3.00 and costs of prosecution to be recovered according to law."

Most of the members of Council spoke on the matter, Messrs. Beck and Trostle opposing it and voting against it. Burgess Holtzworth spoke strongly against it and later said to a representative of this paper that he would not sign the measure. An ordinance passed some years ago prohibited the coasting on pavements.

THE CURB MARKET

Mr. Armor and Mr. Hamilton, together with other members of the Council spoke enthusiastically on the curb market proposition. They reported citizens generally as heartily in favor of the proposition, said that it was generally known that farmers who refuse to "peddle" their vegetables would bring them to town if a market were established, that it would bring about a uniform price among the market men, and would give Gettysburg a chance "to live better and cheaper."

Mr. Armor said among other things that he felt, with many others, that the curb market would be a stepping stone to a market house with a town hall which could be used for convention purposes. On all sides, he said, people favor the plan and advantages are pointed out by everyone.

As there are a great many details regarding the matter to be worked out it was decided that a committee of three be appointed to investigate the proposition and, if they report favorably, to present with their report at the next regular meeting of Council, an ordinance covering the various details.

PICTURE SHOW LICENSES

William Hersh, Esq., and J. L. Williams, Esq., appeared before Council asking that the recently passed ordinance requiring 50 cents a night license from the picture shows be revoked. The Ordinance Committee was ordered to investigate the matter and to report at next meeting.

Mr. Hersh represented Mr. Walter and called attention to the fact that his show is being run at a loss. In December he claimed the loss was $144.95 and in January $49.45. Weekly expenses were placed at $81.50. Mr. Hersh also cited the licenses paid in other towns and cities in this section, the average being about $50 per year while the new ordinance would make it about $15 here.

Mr. Williams represented David J. Forney and stated that while the Wizard was not being run at a loss, it was not flourishing to such an extent that it could afford to pay the license asked. He presented a petition signed by a large number of citizens calling attention to the enjoyable and profitable character of the entertainments provided at the Wizard and asking that the license fee be lowered.

Action was taken as noted above.

"GALLOW'S AVENUE"

Mr. Beck asked permission to place a light on Gallows Avenue at the intersection of the two alleys.

"Gallows Avenue!" asked a Councilman.

citizen. "Where's that?"

"He means Wall Street," answered some one.

"Jail Alley is the name," said another.

Mr. Beck explained that he meant the alley in the rear of the county jail which is known by many as "Gallows Avenue" and which others know by the other names given. Permission to place a tungsten lamp was granted.

OTHER MATTERS

A petition signed by a number of residents of North Washington street and the college campus was presented asking that Council allow are lamp to remain at campus gate. On motion of Mr. Butt, seconded by Mr. Beck, it was decided that the action ordering its removal be revoked. In the course of the discussion regarding the light Mr. Tawney stated that he had visited a number of towns recently whose lighting system was far inferior to that of Gettysburg.

The matter of the opening of the alley at the end of East Middle street was referred to Congressman Lefson some time ago. A letter was read at Council meeting saying that he had presented the matter to the War Department and it has since been given into the hands of the chairman of the National Park Commission, Col. Nicholson, for investigation.

Mr. Butt reported on the meeting of the committee of Council and the Western Maryland railroad officials regarding alleged grievances. He stated that the matter had been discussed amicably and favorable action from the railroad was expected in the near future, especially regarding the matter of flagman.

The fight committee reported on the count of poles angle recently.

Ordinances were accepted and ordered advertised ordaining Buford street and West Middle street West of West street.

Street Commissioner Warner appeared before Council protesting against the ordinance allowing property owners twelve hours after snow had ceased falling to clean off their pavements. He said that by that time it was packed hard and could not be taken off. Council took no action.

Adjournment was taken to February 15 which will be known as "exoneration night."

CHOOSE DESIGN FOR MONUMENT

Virginia Gettysburg Monument Commission Selects Design for State Memorial to be Placed on West Confederate Avenue.

The Virginia Gettysburg Battlefield Monument Commission, which has been in session in Richmond several days, has made known the result of its labors in the work of selecting a design.

The commission fixed on the design submitted by W. F. William Sievers, of Washington. It is an equestrian statue, with General Lee on "Traveler," the horse he rode during the Civil War, and the base of the monument is surrounded by soldiers of the three branches of the service.

This paper has predicted for months past that the design for the Virginia monument would be similar to that which has now been adopted.

The memorial is expected to be among the most handsome and most striking on the battlefield. The site on West Confederate avenue overlooking the scene of Pickett's Charge, which was selected several months ago, will be the place for the erection of the memorial.

Work on the monument will be started now as soon as the contract can be let and other matters gotten in shape.

CLASS FIGHT

The Sophomore class of college this morning succeeded in capturing about thirty Freshmen who intended to take part in a class banquet at the Hotel Gettysburg at noon. Only about twenty of the class were able to enjoy the feast. The captured ones were locked up for safe keeping. A few managed to sneak into the hotel by the back doors after word had been spread that the banquet was to be held. IRISH TOM HAS LEFT COUNTY

District Attorney Neely Sees that Irishman Gets on Train without Chance to Procure Any More Drink.

"If I get out of this town without his honor, the Court, seeing me I won't be back in a year." So said Irish Tom when liberated from the town lock-up late Tuesday afternoon the promise being made to District Attorney Neely who told him that if he were found here at any time this year the Eastern Penitentiary would have him for boarding and lodging during 1911.

Judge Swope presented Tom with a crisp dollar bill on Monday and told him to buy a ticket out of town. On the road to the station the Irishman met a friend who had "a quart." It soon vanished and the dollar was appropriated for further refreshment with the result that Tom was soon in custody as noted in these columns yesterday. When he had sobered up he was most penitent.

"What kind of a man am I anyhow?" he asked. "Here, his honor, the judge, treated me like a man and I took his money and got drunk. Now I can't blame him if he puts it to me."

District Attorney Neely was careful that Monday's experience should not be repeated. Burgess Holtzworth and Officer O'Riley let Tom out of the lock-up and took him to Mr. Neely's office where he received a severe lecture and listened to a line of threats which seemed to impress him thoroughly. Mr. Neely then telephoned to the Reading station to place a ticket to Harrisburg in the hands of Conductor Garvin for Tom.

Officer O'Riley was then instructed to keep him in charge until train time and then see that he was on board when the train pulled out. The program carried successfully and the Irishman landed at 6.15 in the Capitol City where he said he had a friend who would get him work and could keep him from drink.

SUITS TO RECOVER CAPITOL PAYMENTS

Civil Action For Millions to Be Brought at Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 2.—Civil suits to recover about $5,000,000 from all the men, or their estates, who were concerned in the scandal attending the building and furnishing of the state capitol at Harrisburg will be brought by the commonwealth of Pennsylvania the later part of this week or next Monday.

All the men indicted on the criminal count of conspiring to defraud the state government will be named in the bills, which have been drawn by Attorney General Todd, Deputy Attorney General Cunningham and David T. Watson, of Pittsburgh, who has been retained as special counsel.

The commonwealth will try to recover the greater amount of the money from the estate of the late Contractor John H. Sanderson, who died May 14, 1909, after his conviction of conspiracy to cheat and defraud the state.

With Sanderson were convicted William L. Mathues, Dr. William P. Snyder and James M. Shumaker. Mathues died about a year ago; Shumaker was superintendent of public buildings and grounds and certified Sanderson's invoices; Snyder passed them as auditor general, and Mathues signed as state treasurer. In the fall of 1906 former State Treasurer William H. Berry uncovered the grafting at the capitol by a speech, in which he declared that the furnishings had cost more than was appropriated for the building.

SAVED HIS SISTER

Heroic Act of Small Boy at Trenton, N. J.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 2.—Harry Aker, an eight-year-old boy, risked his life to save his six-year-old sister from death when she fell into the waters of the local basin of the Delaware & Raritan canal after breaking through the ice. The youngster was some distance away when he saw his sister crash through the ice. Although he was in danger of drowning also, he rushed to the hole, slipping from one piece of loose ice to another, and grasped the drowning girl by the hair as she came to the surface. Luckily the ice held him and he was able to bring the shivering child to shore. When the girl had dried her clothes by a fire which he lighted the two went home, and did not say anything about the incident to their parents. A policeman who had witnessed the rescue from an overhead bridge some distance from the scene told the boy's father later of his brave act.

BANKERS FAIL FOR $7,000,000

New York House of Fisk & Robinson Suspend.

OVER $1,000,000 UNSECURED

Were Unable to Dispose of Securities Except at Heavy Loss, and Blame the High Cost of Living For Depressed Bond Market.

New York, Feb. 2. — The banking house of Fisk & Robinson, prominent among the houses dealing in government, state and city bonds and other investment securities, has failed. The firm's representatives said the liabilities were approximately $7,000,000, of which more than $1,000,000 is unsecured. The liabilities are thus greater than those of any other private banking house which has suspended since a long time antedating the panic of 1907.

The failure was due directly to their heavy undertakings on behalf of the Buffalo & Susquehanna railroad system. The firm owned $800,000 bonds of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railway company and $1,200,000 preferred stock of its subsidiary, the Buffalo, Susquehanna Railroad company, and was unable to dispose of the securities except at a very heavy loss. It had acted as fiscal agent for the system for several years and had become involved in it otherwise than in the securities owned outright at the time of the suspension. The railroad has failed to earn its fixed charges.

Indirectly, but at the same time importantly, the failure was also due to the depression in the bond market and to the high cost of living or, according to Mr. Hill's epigram, to the cost of high living. Joseph Stanley W. Brown, the manager of the firm's offices, said the firm had found it extremely difficult to dispose of high grade bonds because the high cost of living impelled investors to put their funds into securities yielding a higher income return. A high income return on a speculative security, rather than a low income return on the highest class securities, he declared to be the prevalent tendency among investors.

A year ago the firm made a statement showing that it was worth $1,250,000 over all liabilities. Since that time it has taken unpaid an issue of $7,000,000 of 3 per cent New York state canal bonds and has secured substantial allotments in sales of New York city bonds. It has also been known as one of the heaviest of the dealers in United States government bonds, and in disposing of these and other high grade securities numbered among its customers a great many interior banks and banking houses.

On the last sale of United States 2 per cent Panama canal bonds under the administration of Leslie M. Shaw as secretary of the treasury, Fisk & Robinson bid for the entire issue of $30,000,000 in six blocks of $5,000,000 each, and were allotted $15,000,000 of them.

WIFE SLAYER JUMPS BAIL

Accused Man Visits Grave of Victim and Then Disappears.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., Feb. 2.—Frank E. McMillen, who was placed on trial in the Blair county court here for the killing of his wife, became a fugitive from justice. He had been at liberty under heavy bail. McMillen visited his wife's grave, and then left for parts unknown. When court opened his bail bond was declared forfeited, and officers are searching central Pennsylvania for him.

Under Pennsylvania law, a jury in a murder case cannot be discharged before a verdict is rendered or a disagreement formally reported, and the court is now considering what shall be done with the jury until the return of the fugitive.

McMillen found his wife in the company of another man, and in attempting to kill the man he shot his wife instead.

MURDERED ALONG ROAD

Two Arrested For Shooting Man Near Sweetheart's Home.

Delmar, Del., Feb. 2.—Frederick Williams, colored, eighteen years old, was found dead with a bullet in his brain near the railroad station at Mason's by Constable Teagle Byrd. Williams was from an orphanage at Washington, D. C., and had gone to Mason's to see his sweetheart, whom he expected to marry this month.

He was warned by a jealous lover not to visit the girl's home, but he paid little attention to the warning. As he was returning from the girl's home he was shot and left in the road to die. Webster and Walter Laws are under arrest, accused of the crime.

The Weather.

Forecast for this section: Fair and warmer today; tomorrow, increasing cloudiness and warmer, possibly rain at night; light variable winds, becoming moderate southerly.

At the land and irrigation show held lately in Chicago one interesting exhibit was samples of woven materials made from Arizona cotton, which passed the highest grade tests for Egyptian cotton. In view of the fact that the United States imports annually $16,000,000 of this product, the discovery that there are large areas in Arizona suited to the production of this type of cotton is a most interesting and valuable one.

SHIP LOST OFF HATTERAS

Hits Shoal in Terrific Storm and Crew of Ten May Have Perished.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 2. — The three-masted schooner Frances, of New York, bound from New York to Jacksonville, is stranded near Cape Hatteras. The vessel is a total wreck, and her crew of ten men are believed to have perished in the terrific storm.

Life savers from both the Big Kinakeet and the Cape Hatteras life saving stations hurried to give what assistance they could.

The vessel stranded during the night in the severe northwest storm which swept the Virginia and Carolina coasts. She is being hammered by a heavy sea and a fifty-two mile wind that is sweeping the shoals. With the temperature below freezing and thick and stormy weather conditions prevailing the work of the life savers in their endeavor to reach her is extremely difficult.

This event is of unusual significance in that there is seldom given to any man the honor of serving so long with such distinguished success in so important an office.

ARRESTS MAY SOLVE ARSON AND MURDER

Man and Woman Accused of Double Crime.

Easton, Pa., Feb. 2.—The arrest of Frank Zeinberg and Mrs. Augusta Tebell, each thirty-five years of age, in New York city on Monday, recalls an almost forgotten tragedy and may clear up a murder and arson case that occurred in this county in 1908.

Mrs. Tebell and her husband conducted a boarding house at Martin's Creek, using a house owned by a cement company. On March 8, 1908, the house was destroyed by fire, and Tebell was so badly burned that he died. The statement was given out that Tebell had gotten drunk and, being melancholy over domestic troubles, had set the house on fire with the intention of committing suicide.

Later a boarder named Max Klein was accused of the arson, pursued by a crowd of foreigners and shot in the arm while escaping. Klein went to New York, where he engaged in the photography business. He is believed to be the man who caused the arrest of the defendants, and is said to have done it through motives of self-protection.

Frank G. McKelvey, assistant secretary of the cement company, swore out a warrant shortly after the fire for the arrest of the couple upon a charge of arson. Mr. McKelvey stated that the company had discovered that the house had been saturated with coal oil before being fired, and that they had reliable information that the woman and Zeinberg were responsible for the blaze.

20 Years With Heart Trouble

"Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has cured me of heart disease of over 20 years' standing. I was so bad that I could not do my work, and could scarcely draw a full breath without fainting or smothering. The doctor told me he could do no more for me; then I commenced taking the Heart Remedy. I shall never forget that night. I slept better than I had before in months. I kept right on getting better, until I was perfectly well."

MRS. LAURA RUSSELL,
Logan, Iowa.

When the heart action is weak, it fails to pump the blood through the lungs with sufficient rapidity. Then the lungs do not absorb the proper amount of oxygen, although they may be taking in a normal amount of air. The result is shortness of breath, smothering spells, difficult breathing, oppressed feeling in chest. Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy strengthens the heart nerves and muscles, and in this way increases the circulation.

CAPTAIN KIDD'S TREASURE FOUND

Wild Excitement at Somers Point, Near Atlantic City.

DISCOVERED IN A CAVE

Finders of Treasure Believed to Have Removed It—Visitors View Cavern, Which Had Been Bricked Up With Walls Two Feet Thick.

Atlantic City, Feb. 2.—Somers Point, near here, is wildly excited because it is believed that the fabled treasure of Captain Kidd, of buccaneer fame, has been found. The excitement is no less because of the fact that the supposed discoverers of the loot made away with it. Old inhabitants who really credit the belief that something of value has been discovered and made away with think it is possible that the treasure trove may have been placed and coin buried by residents of the ancient seaport when the British war vessels showed up during the Revolutionary war, but the more romantic choose to believe that the treasure was really the Kidd deposit, which had been searched for during the past half century along this portion of the coast.

The supposed discoverers of the treasure are believed to have carted it away during the heavy storm of Saturday night last. They left as clues an old cave within a few hundred yards of the home of County Judge Higbee and hundreds of curious townsfolk visited the spot.

The unexcavated cave had been bricked up with walls over two feet in thickness, which show the greatest care in construction. The top is covered with slabs of red and stone of a quality unknown in this locality and believed to have been brought here along with the supposed treasure buried by Captain Kidd or others who sought its concealment. The bricks are of a style similar to those known to have been brought here from England during Colonial days, and both stone and brick are so old that they crumble to blows of picks now being used to discover the real extent of the cave.

So far as can be learned from the formal examination made by Mayor John Campbell the cave is at least 150 years old. When the first discovery was made the signs left by the mysterious visitors showed that the cave had been opened and that the diggers had continued their work until they uncovered what is supposed to have been a chest or box, square and about six feet long by two feet wide. The box had been dredged to a wagon, whose wheels marks were plainly visible, but trace of the vehicle was lost after it had taken the main road leading to Pleasantville. The cave lies in direct line with an aged cedar tree and a stump of another tree, which are believed to have been the marks by which the strangers found the spot. The strangers had evidently carried their digging for about ten feet, but stopped as soon as they found the supposed chest. Further digging disclosed the fact that the cave runs back for about twelve feet and has two other entrances both bricked in the same style as the one uncovered.

Captain Mark Dougherty, one of the oldest residents of the resort, believes that the cave held valuables belonging to people of Somers Point and surrounding country, left there during the war of the Revolution.

Captain Van Sant, who is also one of the oldest residents of Somers Point, recalled the fact that for years past visitors, many of whom were armed with maps, have been digging in the vicinity of the city in search of the fabled treasure of Captain Kidd. Most of the strangers carried cryptic charts and carried out their searches in secret.

Residents of the city have already started on the work of digging out the entire interior of the cave in the hope of finding more treasure, and Mayor Campbell is considering the swearing in of special policemen to guard the spot to prevent the carrying away of any other valuables which may be found there.

Town Officials Attend Cock Fight.
Olyphant, Pa., Feb. 2.—Claiming he has the names of many prominent men of this place who attended a cock fight the other night, Rev. D. J. Murphy threatens to use them as witnesses against the saloonkeeper in whose saloon, he says, the fight took place. He says several of the borough officials and a number of other prominent residents attended and bet on the battles. Father Murphy intends to take the matter into court and ask that the license of the saloonkeeper be revoked.

Hicks, who has been promoting the deal here.

East Orange, N. J., Feb. 2.—Governor Fort is ill with a severe cold and is confined to his room.

Orchard work is a most fascinating occupation for those who love outdoor work, and one is well repaid in the responsiveness shown by the trees to the thoughtful care bestowed upon them. More than this, they never bite or kick back.

RIGID LIVING COST INQUIRY

Congressional Committee Will Investigate.

TARIFF IS UNDER FIRE

To Ascertain Whether New Measure Is Responsible For High Cost of Food and Other Necessaries of Life. Hearings Will Be Public.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The house of representatives will make a rigid investigation into the cost of living. Representative Payne, of New York, the chairman of the ways and means committee, and majority leader in the house, introduced his resolution providing for an investigation along the broadest lines.

Prior to introducing his measure, Mr. Payne conferred with Representative Champ Clark, the minority leader, who had been designated with him by the committee to draft the instrument authorizing the investigation.

The committee is to inquire into any alleged increase in the cost of the necessities of life, some of which, such as clothing, fuel, furniture, meats and foodstuffs, are enumerated. The wholesale and retail prices and rates of profit are to be investigated.

The question of whether the tariff is responsible for the alleged high cost of living is covered in a general provision as to "whether prices are affected, increased or otherwise, by any laws of the United States."

The hearings of the committee will be open to the public. It may sit anywhere in the United States and summon and swear witnesses.

To Probe Beef Trust.

A thorough and far-reaching investigation of the so-called "beef trust" is provided for in a resolution introduced by Representative Coudry, a Republican member from Missouri. The resolution is drawn in drastic terms and appropriates $20,000 to be used in getting at the facts. Fines of $5000 and imprisonment for five years is provided for witnesses who decline to reveal information to the committee.

The bill provides for a "thorough and complete investigation of the present unreasonable and unnecessary advancing prices made by meat packers and of the reported hoarding of live stock in western yards; of the refusing of large orders and the holding of supplies in freezers to create the impression of a shortage."

The committee, which is to consist of six senators and six members of the house, is empowered to call witnesses and administer oaths, to sit anywhere and compel the attendance of those from whom they desire testimony. It is authorized to call upon any court in the United States to enforce the orders of the committee and compel replies to questions put to witnesses.

To Enter Suit to Dissolve Meat Trust.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Civil suit to dissolve the National Packing company on the charge that it is a trust is expected to be filed by United States District Attorney Sims within a few days as a result of disclosures made before the federal grand jury investigating the alleged beef trust. The suit will be filed possibly this week. This report was given weight by the information Saturday that in the books and documents of the National Packing company now being examined by the grand jury there had been found evidences which convinced Mr. Sims that indictments could be secured for five packinghouse officials, the heads of the chief meat packers there.

MEAT PRICES STILL GO UP

Wholesalers Advance Price In Face of Boycott.

New York, Feb. 2.—The wholesale meat dealers of this city announced an advance of a cent a pound in the price of beef as a result of the decreased demand.

While wholesale rates went up a fractional part of a cent Monday, and the dealers were advised that curtailing shipments were likely to lead to a further advance, consumers kept up the campaign for abstention from meat until lower prices are forced.

"Something has got to drop hard pretty soon," said one prominent market man. "Supplies are piling up, and the cold storage capacity of the city is limited. Already egg men are throwing over their holdings at reduced rates and butter has come down. Meat will have to follow if the reduced rate of consumption is maintained, no matter if shipments are heavily reduced."

VARIED PRICES IN SAME CITY

Probers Discover That Location Has a Lot to Do With Food.

Washington, Feb. 2.—That prices differ in different sections and places in Washington was one of the principal facts brought out before the committee of the house, of which Representative Moore is chairman, in its investigation of the high cost of living. M. C. Hargrave, the district purchasing agent, produced in evidence various samples of pork chops, sirloin steak and eggs which he had bought in the fashionable section of the city.

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year."

old-fashioned Georgetown, and in the navy yard section, where there is a large population of working people. The cost of the meats varied from 2 to 7 cents a pound, the highest being in the northwest section and the lowest in the navy yard. The meats were practically the same in quality.

Further illustrating the fact that the place of purchase has a great deal to do with the cost of articles purchased, Mr. Moore narrated his personal experiences. Monday morning he had breakfast at the National Press club with Representative Lafan. They had grape fruit, cereal and cream, fresh eggs fried, coffee and bread and butter. The bill for both was 70 cents.

Tuesday Mr. Moore and Mr. Lafan had breakfast at a leading hotel. They ordered exactly the same kind of food that they had at the Press club the morning before, and the bill was $4.75. The service, Mr. Moore added, was excellent in both places.

Took the Place of Breaker Boys at Coal Colliery.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Feb. 2.—Old men, many of them grandfathers, broke the strike of the 200 small breaker boys at the White Oak breaker at Archibald and compelled the boys to return to work without getting the increased pay they demanded. When the new child labor law, effective Jan. 1, drove a number of boys out of the breaker, old men were put in their places and were paid $1.10 a day, whereas the boys got only 72 cents. They demanded an increase, saying they worked as quickly as the men, and on being refused they went on a strike. The company began filling their places with old men, and the boys gave up and went back to work at the old rate.

UNITED SUPPORT FOR TAFT POLICIES

Republicans Will Stand by the President's Program.

Washington, Feb. 2.—The Taft policies on railroad legislation, conservation, postal savings banks and anti-injunction are likely to receive united Republican support. The so-called "insurgents" have reached a unanimous decision on this subject, and soon after Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, and Representative Hayes of California, were authorized to inform the president of this decision. The New York Republican delegation also decided to support the administration policies and suggested a legislative program.

The "insurgent" action was taken, it is stated, in order to give definite assurance to President Taft, and to the country, that they were unanimously in favor of all progressive legislation advocated by the president.

It is a conspicuous fact that the ship subsidy and federal incorporation recommendations of the president were not included in the list, and it was stated by one of the "insurgents" that there had been no endeavor to reach an agreement upon these subjects.

The fight over the rules is not to be allowed to interfere with the advocacy of the administration policies. The "insurgents" discussed the question of a Republican caucus on the proposition of amending the rules of the house and of deposing the speaker from the chairmanship of the rules committee, and it was stated there was practically a unanimous understanding to the effect that the "insurgents" would not caucus on the rules question. They stand ready, however, to act whenever the matter is presented on the floor of the house.

KILLED GOING FOR AID

Worker Hit on Head Falls to Death on Way to Doctor.

South Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 2.—William Welsh, aged twenty-three years the support of a widowed mother, met with a violent death at the Bethlehem Steel works, when he accidentally stepped on a loose board while climbing down a scaffolding and was thrown to the ground, thirty feet below. Just before his fatal fall he had been bit on the head by a large stone, and it was while on the way to get medical treatment that the tragedy occurred.

Welsh's death was the third violent one to occur in his family.

GARFIELD SILENT

Won't Discuss Testimony Growing Out of Ballinger Probe.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 2.—Former Secretary of the Interior James R. Garfield declared that he would make no comments upon any of the testimony growing out of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation. He said he would not take part in the controversy unless called as a witness, and that so far he had not been subpoenaed. It was said in the evidence that he was kept out of Taft's cabinet by coal land claimants.

Is 100 Years Old Today.

Norristown, Pa., Feb. 2.—Richard Doran is 100 years old today. He was born in Ireland, came to New York when thirty years of age, and has lived in this vicinity more than half a century. He is happy, healthy and the proud father of eleven children. He rises at 5 o'clock every morning. He has never missed a meal and attributes his long life to temperate living.

The job of roasting the fowl may be simplified if it is not supplied with a good coat of natural fat if slices of salt pork are stuck on to the legs and breast with toothpicks, the melting fat serving the same purpose as the basting and preventing the upper portions from being baked too hard. The strips should be removed from twenty minutes to half an hour before the baking process is completed so that the bird may be evenly browned.

CURVES AND GRADES.

They Are Becoming Important Owing to Increase of Automobile Traffic.

Until recently the location of highways has been governed more by grade than by alignment. For obvious reasons horse drawn vehicles demanded easy grades, but were little affected by sharp curves. Consequently roads were so laid out as to meet this requirement, being made to wind around hills and follow tortuous water courses with little attempt to provide curves of long radii. The result is a highway system which, except in level country, is composed of crooked roads, well adapted to the needs of wagon traffic, picturesque and pleasing, but unsuited to the requirements of a traffic composed of heavy motor driven vehicles traveling at high speed.
Safety is a factor that hitherto has entered into the work of road building only to a very limited extent, but which is constantly assuming more importance. The rapidly increasing use of motor vehicles places this new responsibility on the roadmaker, and the building of new roads with longer curves and the realignment of old roads will do much toward reducing the dangers attendant upon the new modes of transportation.
The existence of a curve generally, though not necessarily, presupposes the presence on the inner side of some obstruction shutting off the view of the roadway ahead from a vehicle traveling around it. Curves having radii of 1,000 feet or less are of common occurrence in such places, and a width of thirty feet in the clear is as great as that found on many country roads. On such a curve the driver of an automobile running in the middle of the road can see an approaching car, also in the middle of the road, only about 350 feet ahead. At thirty miles an hour a little less than nine seconds are required to traverse this distance, and if each car were running at that speed only a little over four seconds would elapse between the instant when they came in sight of each other and their meeting. Many considerations prohibit the establishment of an arbitrary minimum radius for highway curves, but a careful study of prevailing conditions shows clearly that more attention will have to be paid to this phase of road building in the future than has been accorded to it in the past. Roads must be economical, they must be durable, and they must satisfy the conditions that experience has imposed upon them, but they must be safe.

Experiments which have been recently conducted by the agricultural department show that fruit like oranges, grapes and apples may have their life considerably extended by cooling to a temperature of 40 degrees before shipment. Normally fruit is picked and packed under warm conditions and, while it cools during shipment, does not cool rapidly enough to prevent the rapid ripening of some fruit and the decay of other fruit. It seems clear that this precooling will not only extend the area over which such fruit may be shipped, but it will improve its quality and reduce the amount of ice required in refrigeration.

A BLAZE OF CONVICTION

Sweeping Over the Whole Country. The more people know of the great discovery that has made so many remarkable cures throughout the state during the past few months, the more convinced are they of the great merit of Root Juice. Thousands of people have been cured by it all over the country. Many that use it a short while are so loud in their praise that their neighbors crowd into the drug store to get some of the health-promoting Juice. Usually one bottle will convince, and it is but seldom that five or six bottles do not make a complete cure of indigestion, constipation, nervous weakness, rheumatism and other troubles arising from a diseased condition of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It seems to cure by removing the cause. It heats and tones the organs that make and filter blood. People are going in crowds many miles to see the man that discovered the wonderful curative agent and get some of it. People's Drug Store has the agency at this point. Root Juice is sold for $1 a bottle or three for $2.50.

Skunk Farm

Four young men of Waynesboro and vicinity have in contemplation the breeding of skunks, as an industry. A hide of a skunk, today, sells for $3.50 to $4.50 and they believe it worth their while to establish a skunk farm in view of the tempting profits. They are endeavoring to secure the lease of an acre and a half of rocky ground near Roadside on which to plant their farm. They believe they could stock this and in a short time have a colony of 500 skunks there and grow them in such profusion that it would be possible to kill 500 a year and sell their hides, for a total sum of about $2000.

They would not be under great expense in establishing this industry except for the wire fence they would put around the farm.

TOO SMART.

By HARRY C. ERNEST.
[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Captain Andrew Baldwin of the cavalry, tired and hungry—he had been engaged in a duty involving much effort and exposure—entered the mess room, unhooked his saber, stood in a corner, took a seat at the table and called for a servant to bring him some refreshment. The captain was eater of the mess, and a very efficient caterer. When a luncheon had been set before him he asked of the servant who placed it there:
"Julius, did you order the supplies?"
"Yes, sar."
"Any one been to my quarters to see me today?"
"Major Leadbeater. He was here to see you this mornin', sar."
"Did he say why he called?"
"No, sar; he didn't say nothin' 'bout what he wanted to see you fo', sar, but it must 'a' been somepln very particular, fo' he waited some time fo' you, sar."
"Waited, did he?"
"Yes, sar; he waited in the room out thar."
"How long did he wait?"
"Must 'a' been 'bout half an hour, sar."
"Half an hour! What did he do with himself all that time?"
"Well, sar, I dunno what he did with himself all de time, but once when I was goin' past de window outside I looked in here in de mess room, and I sor him measurin' de legs of de mess table."
"What?"
The captain was about to put a piece of meat into his mouth, but he stopped his fork a few inches from his chin and stared at the darky.
"He was measurin' de legs ob de table, sar."
"What with?"
"A yaller tapeline."
The captain laid down his knife and fork, leaned back in his chair, put his hands in his pockets, puckered up his lips and gave a low whistle. There was no change in his position for full ten minutes, when without regard to his unfinished luncheon he arose from the table, took up his sword, laid out and left the mess room. Going over to the officers' club, he found several men playing billiards and then there entered into secret conference with them. The results of that conference will appear later.

A few days after this Captain Baldwin strolled over to the quarters of the infantry, where he met Major Leadbeater.
"Hello, major!" he said. "Heard you were over to my quarters the other day. Sorry I wasn't there. Anything special?"
"Oh, no! I was around your way with nothing to do and thought I might as well drop in."
"Well, try again. By the bye, can't you dine at our mess some evening this week?"
"I don't mind."
At the dinner the officers comprising the mess were present to a man. During the coffee and the smoking, when all were feeling comfortable after a good meal and plenty of wine, Major Leadbeater, who was a great hand at making odd wagers, asked one of the officers how high he thought the clock was from the floor. The officer named a height, whereupon Leadbeater offered to bet him a small sum that it was a certain other figure. The bet was taken, and Leadbeater lost. Several other similar bets were made by those present, when Leadbeater proposed a pool as to the height of the table at which they were sitting.

There was no difficulty in getting the officers into the pool. Indeed, every man took the chance allotted him. Then Leadbeater made a number of side bets. He had come to the dinner after having cashed his pay accounts in advance and had plenty of money. The figure he named was three feet two and one-eighth inches. The other figures named ranged from three feet and three-quarter inches to three feet one and a quarter inches.
When the bets were all made the colonel and the chaplain came in together—just to smoke a cigar with the youngsters—and the colonel, knowing of the pool, asked to be permitted to take a chance. But the chances were all taken, so he asked if any one would make a side bet with him. Leadbeater remarked that he would were it not that all his ready cash was staked. The colonel offered to accept his I. O. U. in lieu of a stake, and Leadbeater took him for $50. The chaplain, too, remarked that he had never made a bet before in his life, but he wouldn't mind taking something on his guess. But no one would make any side bets with him.

When the funds had all been put in the stakeholder's hands the quartermaster was called on to measure the height of the table. Procuring a tape-line, he proceeded with the work amid suppressed excitement and many glances at one another among those whose money was at risk. Finally, with his thumb on a point in the tape indicating the table's height, he held the tape up to the light and announced:
"Three feet one and a quarter inches!"
"There's a mistake there!" cried Leadbeater and checked himself.
"Measure it yourself," said the quartermaster.
Leadbeater took the tape, made the measurement and turned pale.
"I've lost," he said as calmly as was possible under the circumstances.
That ended Major Leadbeater's money making by bets. An inch had been sawed off the legs of the table.

A reader of these notes who is interested in hotbeds inquires about the efficiency of the double pane hotbed sash. We have not used this type of sash and would be pleased if any of our readers could give our inquirer some light on the subject.
One of the best flocks of hens for winter laying that we ever saw was turned out on a pile of litter on the south side of a barn when the weather was not too severe and made to scratch for their grain ration. In this way the hens got two essentials, exercise and fresh air.

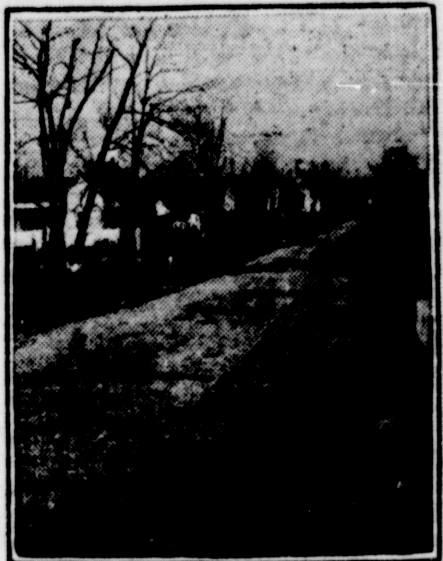

BURNT CLAY'S VALUE

Durable Roads Built of It at Small Cost.

PREPARATION OF ROADBED.

Careful Grading and Firing Necessary. Highways That Are Constructed of "Gumbo" Clay Should Be Rolled Until Smooth and Hard.

In large areas in the south sedimentary clays are found very generally. In these areas the clays are of a particularly plastic and sticky variety known as "gumbo" and "buckshot." In such localities traffic is absolutely impossible during the wet season, as the wheels of heavy vehicles will sink to the hub.
Gumbo clay is black, owing to the high percentage of organic or vegetable matter it contains. It is particularly sticky in its nature, and is almost wholly free from sand and grit.

From Good Roads Magazine, New York. WELL BUILT BURNT CLAY HIGHWAY.

After it has been burned, however, the plasticity is entirely destroyed, and a light clinker is formed which, though not particularly hard, when pulverized forms a smooth surface and seems to wear well. It should be understood that not all of the clay out of which the road is to be constructed is to be clinkered, but only a sufficient amount should be rendered nonplastic to neutralize the too sticky character of the native clay.
Good sound wood, as dry and well seasoned as it is possible to procure, should be provided before beginning the work and stacked at convenient intervals along the side of the road. About one cord of wood has been found necessary for eight linear feet of roadbed twelve feet wide.

After grading the road to an even width between ditches it is plowed up as deeply as practicable. It will be found necessary to use horses or mules, as the extremely heavy nature of the clay makes the work of deep plowing difficult. After the plowing has been completed furrows are dug across the road from ditch to ditch, extending through and beyond the width to be burned. If it is intended to burn twelve feet of roadway the transverse furrows should be sixteen feet long, so as to extend two feet on each side beyond the width of the final roadway. Across the ridges formed between these furrows, which should be about four feet apart, the first course of cord wood is laid longitudinally so as to form a series of flues in which the firing is started.

The best and soundest cord wood is selected for this course and should be laid so that the pieces will touch, thus forming a floor. Another layer of wood is thrown irregularly across this floor, in crib formation, with spaces left between in which the lumps of clay are piled.

After the lumps of clay have been heaped upon this floor a third course of wood is laid parallel to the first. This third course is the first, and each opening and crack should be filled with brush, chips, bark, small sticks or any other combustible material. The top layer of clay is placed over all, and the finer portions of the material are heaped over the whole structure.
The deep covering of clay which is thrown over all should be taken from the side ditches and may be in lumps of all sizes, including the very finest material. It is spread as evenly as possible over the top in a layer of not less than six to twelve inches. Finally the whole is tamped and rounded off so that the heat will be held within the flues as long as possible.

When the roadbed has been carefully prepared according to the foregoing directions the firing should begin. If, however, a large force of laborers are available for the work a greater number of flues can be fired at one time.
When the material is sufficiently cooled the roadbed should be brought to a high crown before rolling, to allow for the compacting of the material. This can be best done with a plow or a grader. After this the rolling should be begun and continued until the roadbed is smooth and hard. The finished crown should have a slope of at least one-half inch to the foot.

Although it cannot be denied that the gumbo and buckshot clays of the south are particularly adapted for burning on account of the high percentage of organic matter which they contain, it is none the less probable that many of the surface clays and soils of the states farther north could be treated in the same way, and, in fact, any soil or clay which bricks or clinkers at a comparatively low temperature should be suitable for the work.

It is quite unjust and decidedly to the disadvantage of the careful poultryman that greater difference is not made on the smaller market between eggs that are strictly fresh, those that are in fair condition and others that are dirty, addled or spoiled. Where the poultryman has built up a private trade this handicap is avoided, and he receives a substantial reward for the pains he takes in seeing that his eggs are fresh and clean. Were like discretion exercised by the store buyer of eggs a very beneficial influence would be exerted generally on the egg business of the country.

Contracting one's crop a year in advance is advantageous sometimes, and at other times it is not. The western hop grower, notably in the Willamette valley, in Oregon, who year before last thought he was saving his bacon by contracting his crop at 9 cents per pound, is at present gnashing his teeth when he sees prices mounting to from 20 to 25 cents. He will know better next time.
Many a native milk cow is cheap at $60 or $70 as a producer of butter fat, while many another, possibly better bred, would be a costly investment at $10. It is not a cow's appearance, but the cash margin lying between total annual returns from her products and the cost of her feed, that determines her worth as a factor in the dairy.
